I have merged the responsibility for two of the charity ball positions (Fundraising and Promotions) and would still like to hire two execs for this position, similar to our set & dec positions requiring 2 execs. The reasoning for this is that the positions go hand in hand, fundraising needs promotions to promote their events / help create sponsorship packaging and come up with fun ideas to engage the students, and promotions needs to be in the know of the things they are to promote. This way the two positions will be more inclined to work together and take on all responsibilities so that there aren't any balls dropped. The separate positions creates a mentality of "that's not my job" when really it is; this way they will support one another and work together as a team instead of individually.